Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding...

Chile celebrated their independence in September from Spain. We went to the main fair where they hold the celebrations to continue in the sowing of the seed. What amazes me is the people will go to these festivities in the freezing cold. Their philosophy is that if they don't get out because of the weather then they will never go out. So, we've figured if they go out then we too can venture out. There has been very little feedback from the tracts, but we do see the people stop and read them. My wife continues at the language institute and a young man named Guillermo communicated with her by email. He noticed her signature as Proverbs 3: 5-8. And he asked her if she had an extra Bible for him. She didn't hesitate to invite him over for a family meal. Guillermo admitted knowing God but said, "something was missing." He said he had visited many different churches while trying to please God. I went through the scriptures with him on what was missing. Three hours later, he put his trust in the Lord. I do believe there are more men and women here that are searching for God, but because of false religion, false doctrine, and false Christians they don't know what the truth is or how to call on the Lord.

In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths....

I met with Christian (the firefighter) again and though he is still not interested in spiritual matters, he is friendly and congenial with me as I continue to be a reliable witness. While waiting at an appointment with my wife, I struck up a conversation with her doctor for the next hour about Christ. He was polite and respectful, and I found out later from my wife that he is Muslim and reads the Koran. He is of Syrian decent and his name is Zamir Oval. Please pray for him. My wife has been invited to the home of Veronica Parra to tutor English every week. Please pray for their friendship and wisdom in witnessing. She is catholic and her husband oversees the Chilean Army here in Patagonia's southern region where the separation of church and state does not exist. He told my wife, "You're the real Baptists." extending their help toward us in any way possible. Lastly, my family and I were invited over to Luis' house for dinner with his family. His dad leads the band for the Chilean Military and claims to be a spiritual man. Luis' mom is a Methodist Pentecostal that has stayed home to guide the family. Luis is young, polite, and unbiased towards Christ while his siblings have taken to every social norm. We are hoping to meet with the family again.

We have decided, due to costs, to have our supplies sent by pallet rather than a container. We have a church in Colorado donating the money to provide for this need and we have two other churches that have also volunteered to help if needed. Thank you all for keeping this matter in prayer; as we are humbled and encouraged by your generosity!

As I write this letter, Chile has broken out in protest over a small increase in metro fees. Of course, as the rally continued, it has allowed protesters a more criminal excuse for destroying property, looting businesses and creating havoc. It has shut down the infrastructure in our city. The Army has been called out to protect private and public establishments around the clock. The town has rolled up into an atmosphere of a national holiday gone wrong, with no idea when life will resume back to normal. While we wait on the Lord's return, until then...

The night is far spent, the day is at hand: let us therefore cast off the works of darkness, and let us put on the armour of light.

Thank you again for your prayers and support!

Sincerely, Derek, Lisa, Hayden and Titus Hansen
